

ROYAL RULERS

The Ocar's Silver Wedding to Be Celebrated at St. Petersburg.

Wales and the Kaiser Will Not Attend the World's Fair.

PETITION OF BERLIN LADIES TO THE EMPEROR WILLIAM.

They Want to Ape the Small Women of London—Gargantuan Painting of Queen Victoria's Jubilee Made Much of Bavaria's Claims in Opposition to German Unity—The Heavy Play at Ostend Outdoes the Gambling at Monte Carlo.

LONDON, Sept. 19.—The coming royal wedding of the Ocar, which is to take place at St. Petersburg, and not at Copenhagen as heretofore, has attracted attention. Much interest has been aroused here by the story that the Duchess of Edinburgh, who is a sister of the Ocar and who is going to attend the wedding, has informed the Kaiser of Wales that she intends to speak freely and fairly to her brother on the subject of persecution of the Jews in Russia. It is hoped and believed that her influence with the Ocar may induce him to modify to some extent the persecution which has started all civilized lands. The Prince and Princess of Wales are not going to St. Petersburg, but the Prince intends to devote himself soon to the daughter of pheasants at Lough Erne, Eastdown.

The London Press states that the recent announcement that the Emperor and the Prince of Wales contemplate visiting the Chicago Exposition of 1893 is a fiction of the wildest description, and it further states, neither the one or the other of these personages has ever entertained any such idea.

Queen Victoria has conditionally promised Emperor William to pass a week next spring at the castle of Stoltenz, on the Rhine near Coblenz, so well known to American tourists. During the Queen's stay at Stoltenz the Emperor and Empress intend residing at the Electoral Palace in Coblenz.

Several communications have been addressed to the English papers of late, calling attention to the hard lot of the maid of honor of the court. Some writers stated that they were employed continuously for twelve hours every day and at small wages. This has called forth the authorized statement that a maid of honor is paid $1,000 a year, that she is only compelled to be at court for about twelve weeks every year, and that her duties are in reality very light ones.

The French papers are making merry over a petition which is soon to be addressed to the Emperor William and which, if he takes any notice of the same, will force him to pose as an expert in feminine costumes. This petition has been addressed to the chief of police at Berlin by a number of ladies of good society in that city and it is in consequence of his expressed wish in answer to the petition that the demonstration they propose will cause an obstruction of the public highway, that the ladies have resolved to address the Emperor direct. This suggested demonstration is none other than the appearance of these ladies in their garden costumes, in a costume which resembles very closely that of a mounted huntsman, and which, it is said, a number of small women in England are now wearing. The object of these Berlin ladies is to introduce in this way a new fashion in costume for feminine equestrian exercise, and one which they think is much better adapted for that exercise than the well known riding habit.

There is indignation in artistic circles over the lack of appreciation shown by the public for Sargent's painting of the Queen's Jubilee Garden Party. The fees received during the exhibition of the election have not sufficed to pay the running expenses. The artist was three years in executing the work, and in a country which the Queen was so small that he loses a considerable sum on the whole transaction. A similar fate was incurred in the case of Lockhart's well known Westminster painting. It is believed that artists will in future decline royal orders.

MONTE CARLO OUTDORE.

THE HEAVY FAL AND HOW IT ORIGINATED AT OSTEND.

LONDON, Sept. 19.—Monte Carlo is just now thrown entirely in the shade by Ostend, where the race for gambling seems to have reached a point approaching madness. A well known Londoner, whose name is not given, has been announced to be as much as $50,000 francs, left Ostend a few days ago with enormous gains, and he is but one of several players who have had astonishing luck this season, to the severe loss of the bank.

One day this summer there was complaint made of the scarcity of 1,000 franc jetons (chips) for the players, whereupon the bank received the very unflattering notion of ordering a number of 1,000 franc jetons from Paris. The result of this was that the bank received at once from 1,000 to 5,000 francs, even for ordinary players, and the whole table was quickly covered with jetons, for this was the amount to be allowed at this particular game, and singularly, at this particular game hardly any language is spoken but German. In fact, all summer the Germans have been by far the heaviest players, and yet among the English checks for $5 and even for $1,000 have been drawn. One player from London is said to have written a check for $14,000. The play begins in the morning and generally continues all day, some even keeping at it all night, for the room is open at all hours. The sunders and managers of the club are not Belgians, but Parisians, and they pay a royalty to the municipality of Ostend amounting to $300 francs for the season.

WEARY OF PERSECUTION.

CHRISTIANS OF RUSSIA ASK THAT THE JEWS BE PERMITTED TO REMAIN.

LONDON, Sept. 19.—There are some who think the Russians are growing tired of the persecution of the Hebrews, especially as the protection of the Jews is a heavy burden on the Christian merchants of Moscow, who have been presented the government, seeking it is to allow the Hebrews to remain in the centers of trade, where they are indispensable as middle men, particularly in the western provinces.

great quantities at the Government arms factories at Spandau. The Holy See has directed that assistance be given to the starving without making any distinction between creeds. It also directs that food be given to the sufferers in preference to money. The Government of Saratov has provided food and shelter for the German immigrants of that section who are suffering from the famine now prevailing.

The Ocar has issued a new ukaz at St. Petersburg, prohibiting the export of goods. The interdiction will take effect Oct. 1. The Prussian import every autumn millions of wheat from Russia, from which the Ocar derives much of their food during the winter.

BAVARIA'S POWERS.

HER PREROGATIVES NOT IN ACCORDANCE WITH GERMAN TRUTH.

BERLIN, Sept. 19.—A bitter controversy is raging between the North German and the Bavarian press strongly advocates the abolition of prerogatives declared to be incompatible with true unity, while the Bavarians jealously guard and preserve their autonomous privileges. Bavaria has, under the constitution of the Empire, an entirely independent military administration, extensive judicial and administrative powers, control of the posts, telegraphs and railways, and special laws in regard to personal servitude and domicile. For instance, marriages contracted by Bavarians in Prussia or elsewhere, according to the formalities of the Empire, are not valid in Bavaria, unless the parties obtain the formal assent of their local authorities to the union. The Bavarians are nearly all Roman Catholics, this keeps Protestant Bavarians within the power of the Catholic majority as to their social status and condition, even when they have passed into a Protestant state like Prussia.

The Bavarians are especially anxious to see adopted in Bavaria military rules of the same character as those in force in the rest of the Empire. Against this the Bavarian soldiers and people strongly remonstrate. The army regulations of Bavaria recognize the right of a soldier to a public trial whenever he is brought on a charge of a criminal character. Such is not the case in the remainder of the Empire, where the military courts are the rule, and there is no restraining influence of publicity to prevent the abuse of military power. The Bavarian soldiers, therefore, are deeply opposed to the introduction of secret military trials in Bavaria, and in deference to public clamor the Bavarian government has given it to be understood that no such change will be made. There is a feeling of irritation in the German press, which is stated that in all 20,000 workmen were coming to Rome to express to the Pope the gratitude of the labor world for his recent encyclical.

His Friends Believed He Had Consumption and Thought He Would Die.

"It all came so suddenly, too," he continued. "Only a short time ago I caught a bad cold, and after that I was rapidly in flesh and strength that in no time at all it seemed I was a mere kaleidoscope, a shadowy wreck of my former self."

NO RAIN AT EL PASO.

The Clouds Have Not Wep at the Command of the Scientists.

UNFAVORABLE CONDITIONS UNDER WHICH THE TEST WAS MADE.

That Part of Texas One of the Driest Spots on the Globe—The Experimenters Still Confident of Success—Upon What Their Hopes Are Based—Going to Corpus Christi.

EL PASO, Tex., Sept. 19.—No rain has fallen and the unrelieved heavens augur little of promise. Since the opening of the bombardment in any of the experiments, it is in El Paso and for miles around has been with the clouds. The clouds came and went, but they were moistureless and served but as an aggravation. Early this afternoon from the southeast there came a stiff little breeze to the south and east, but hugging closely to the horizon. There lies a bank of moisture bearing messengers and before to-morrow morning the deluge may come. At this writing, however, it is but mere possibility and even the scientists have almost abandoned all hope. The failure, if failure it be, is beyond all shadow of doubt, attributable to the extremely unfavorable conditions under which the experiment was made. In the first place El Paso is one of the driest points in the entire country. This is not merely a chance assertion; it is the record of the Signal Service Bureau.

One day about three weeks ago when the relative humidity at St. Louis was almost seventy, the observation at El Paso registered six. Since his arrival here Mr. Ellis has kept a record of atmospheric conditions. Since Tuesday the barometric line on the chart has shown a rapid rise until at 10:30 o'clock yesterday morning it was above thirty. The observation taken by the Signal Service operators at the same hour recorded thirty and thirty-one hundredths. This is approaching the extremely dry point of the Signal Service standard. Earlier in the day there had been a few thin, vaporous clouds drifting about. These had been drained of their moisture by the shower of the night before and faded away before the first explosion.

It was under such conditions that work was commenced. By 11 o'clock Mr. Jennings and his burros were on the top of Franklin Mountain and the grand explosion was soon on. Half an hour later the first of Mr. Fairchild's bombs was sent skyward. It was about 2 o'clock before a balloon ascended; from that hour until 6 o'clock the air was so dry that the clouds were exploded consisted of over 7,000 cubic feet of oxygen and hydrogen gas in ten balloons, one-pound bombs and almost half a ton of rock—a few pounds of dynamite. This is the same amount and proportion of explosives used in each of the Midland experiments, each of which was a complete success, reports sent out by the Signal Service to the contrary notwithstanding. A total of 80 shots were fired, with intervals averaging one and one-half minutes. At 6 o'clock operations were discontinued, but an hour later the scientists returned to the hill and exploded ten balloons, a dozen bombs and fifty pounds of powder.

By this time a bank of heavy black clouds had appeared on the horizon to the south and east, while faint flashes of lightning far away flashed in the evening sky. Everybody predicted rain before morning, but it did not come. The clouds hung low, and at dawn were as distant as at dusk. There was one favorable indication. The relative humidity of the air in this county being so low, a dew is an extreme novelty and even when it does appear the amount of the moisture is so small that it is hardly noticed.

This morning, however, the ground, low buildings about town and the trees and grass in the park were fairly dripping with water. This indication was noted by the Signal Service operator and one of the most reputable citizens.

J. H. Christ, and old miner who has spent the past twenty years prospecting in the hills of New Mexico, in this vicinity, said: "While out in the hills I was compelled to spend the greater part of my nights in the open air, and never in all my experience have I seen such a heavy dew as I saw to-day."

This at least proves that a certain amount of moisture was attracted by the concussion. A settler arriving in El Paso to-day says that last night there was a tremendous rain-fall in the country contiguous to San Jose. While reports from the country to the east are even closer distances announce a greater or smaller quantity of rain. It is just as firm a believer in the three theories as before, and says: "I should be discouraged! This is one failure out of four experiments, and I consider that a 'very fair average' for a first trial."

ants in the Huckleberry have shown that vein, which is the same in both properties, makes rich ore at a point about half mile from the workings, so a lease been granted to work the Arty again. old shafts will be let severely alone this year, and attention will be paid to the mining of a new one in the ore chute as now shown in Huckleberry.

A district that is attracting a great deal of attention among the miners, and here is called La Plata District, located about fifty miles below here on Clear Creek. A number of mines have been opened up at this place, the veins being fissures in the archaic granite and very hard to pay strikes, however, are rarely over two feet in width. Some of them are rich in sulphate of str. born silver and gray copper. A general average of the ore appears to give a bush hundred and twenty-five ounces in silver per ton.

The Local Market.

There was not much trading in the Mining exchange and stocks were generally on the n grade.

Cobalt, as in former times, dropped after the late boom. As usual, the first telegrams relation to the great strike made the stock not confirmed, and after the news had been held up longer than expected, it, in hopes of contradictory tidings, supporters stood from under, and the stock slumped. It opened at $1 bid, but ere a sale could be made the price fell to 90¢, and close it was offered at 86¢, with the best bids at $1.35. Nosides were made.

Huckey Brown was the only stock that managed some degree of activity. When trading closed 100 shares were sold at 214, upon the price declined to 94, at that figure 500 shares were sold, and later 200 shares sold at 98, the market closing at 94 asked, and closed.

Copper was steady at 98¢ asked and there were transferred at that figure. The following quotations were made on the Chicago Exchange:

SILVER	ASKE	BID.	ASKE
1 95	.....	N. Reed.	00
AL.	.....	W. J. Allen.	00
304	97 1/2	1 1/2	2 1/2

The market was weak and prices were low.

Business is very dull among the mining brokers at present, which probably is regarded as an excuse for a most unusual amount of roidism on the part of the smaller fry. Many complaints have been made of those who, having no business of their own, are inclined to prevent the more fortunate from conducting theirs, but hitherto there has been a lamentable lack of fines administered as a punishment.

ODD FELLOWS' CONCLAVE.

Delegates From All Over the World Arriving to Attend the Sovereign Grand Lodge Meeting.

BIENNIAL GATHERING OF THE ORDER TO TAKE PLACE IN ST. LOUIS THIS WEEK.

Delegates Arriving Last Night Principally Taken Care of By the Reception Committee—Chief Underwood Expected This Morning—Preparations for the Great Event—Sketches of Prominent Odd Fellows—History of the Order.

The selection of St. Louis as the place of holding the Biennial Conclave of the Sovereign Grand Lodge of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows is appreciated by all classes of citizens and all hands are working to make the first affair of the kind ever held here a huge and never-to-be-forgotten success. All that foresight and public spirit can do to provide for the incoming guests and acquit the city in royal shape is being done, citizens outside the order vying with those in fellowship.

Last night the city was already adding to its holiday attire in anticipation of the reception of thousands upon thousands of the brethren. Buildings were being decorated with the national colors and society emblems. Hackmen rolled briskly about freighted with newly-arrived guests. The principal hotels were jammed with men from all quarters of the State, and the lodgings within and outside the order were world-wide.

In spite of the fact that the committee having the apportionment of quarters was a trifle behind-hand in making its final arrangements, the great crowds were quickly absorbed and scattered among large and minor hotels, boarding houses and private residences, proving the cosmopolitan character of the city, attesting to its hospitality and contrasting the wisdom and foresight of the Sovereign Grand Lodge in selecting St. Louis as the place of assembling. No better answer could be given those who sneered at claims of St. Louis for consideration in connection with the World's Fair, than the speedy manner in which the rapidly augmented population was assimilated. Aside from an unusual overflow in the promenade, no crowding was noticeable. "Why," said one of the leading hotel men, "St. Louis will house and feed fully 50,000 strangers next week and you will not appreciate that there are very many people here. She could take care of 100,000 easily."

The excellent arrangements of the Bureau of Information, located at 213 North Eighth street, is to be commended. Here competent clerks, under the direct management of Col. M. F. Dotle, have registered a very large number of houses where accommodation may be secured. So general is the public spirit displayed in this direction that already more accommodation within a short distance of the central portion of the city has been registered than can possibly be called upon. "We could house Sherman's army," remarked Capt. Woodward, Col. Dotle's chief assistant, "but we won't be called upon to use all the accommodations offered. I am surprised at that the Grand officers feel assured that there will be such a gathering of the lodges, encampments and Patriarchs Militant, with their families and friends as has never before been seen within the history of the order of the Three Links. While it is probable that every exertion would have been made by the local lodges and the friends of the order, as well as citizens generally, to achieve success, even without the co-operation of this committee, there is no doubt that the united efforts and great influence of the past grand masters have been potent. In answer to their cordial invitations sent broadcast, the wide world o'er, the brethren of the entire jurisdiction have, by hearty and unanimous accord, accepted, and resolved to celebrate the occasion in a manner becoming its importance and creditable to the jurisdiction of Missouri and to the great city of St. Louis.

The happy choice of this city and the con-current dates of the conclave and the annual fall festivities assure the grandest celebration of the kind ever witnessed in this country.

THE PARADE.

The parade will move at 2 o'clock sharp to-morrow afternoon, starting from the corner of Jefferson avenue and Lucas place, three bands giving notice that the procession has started. Each division will take up its line of march, and being covered by the preceding division.

When arriving within the review line stand on Twelfth and Olive streets, the Grand Marshal and his staff and all the officers of each division will salute by raising their hats, with right hand on left shoulder.

The line will form on Lucas place, as follows:

Platoon of mounted police, Grand Marshal, Chief of staff, adjutants and aides to Grand Marshal, will form on north side of Twelfth street, in order indicated on plan.

The Lieutenant-General of the Army of Patriarchs Militant, John C. Underwood, and staff, Maj. Gen. E. M. Sloan and staff, Brig. Gen. Underwood and staff, and other Grand Officers and the Denver Lancers will form on Lucas place, west of Twelfth street.

First Division of Patriarchs Militant, Missouri Regiment, will form on the south side, Twelfth street.

IN ALASKA.

The Photographic Story of a Government Survey Party.

Camera Pictures of Life in and Around Camp Davidson.

SCENES AND CHARACTERS AS FOUND ON THE 141ST PARALLEL.

Surgeon Kingsbury's Snap Shots Under the Midnight Sun—The Surveyors' Camp and Officers, the Ice-Grooved Yukon, Sheep Mountain Foot-Hills and the "Frozen Waterfall"—Old Chief Charley and Windy French—A Dog-Sledge Group—Some Alaskan Outlets.

Before Dr. W. V. Kingsbury of St. Louis, went to Alaska as surgeon of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey party, under command of Mr. John E. McGrath, also of St. Louis, he took some lessons on practical photography from Harry Newbold, the local photographer. For two weeks Newbold was in charge of Dr. Kingsbury's education in that special department. He took him up and down the river, camera in hand, and taught him the best method of getting clear and true water-views. Then he "chaperoned" him out into the country west of St. Louis and initiated him into the mysteries of landscape photography. Kingsbury was an apt pupil, for he had a well-defined object in wishing to learn. At the end of the two weeks' term Newbold graduated Kingsbury with the following verbal diploma:

"You're all right now, King. You can get all the views you want of Alaska. Only don't try to develop them out there. Pack your developing outfit, but don't look at them again until you return to the States."

Then Newbold went with Dr. Kingsbury, who brought under his direction the best and photographic outfit there was to be found. And that outfit was among Kingsbury's effects when the adventurous young physician left St. Louis for his two-year voluntary exile in the arctic circle.

Dr. Kingsbury has now been in St. Louis about three weeks, having left the Alaskan camp of the government survey party at the conclusion of the work for which the expedition had been organized, and made the secured, packed in a box, the material results of his photographic studies under Harry Newbold. They came in the shape of several hundred Alaskan views, all excellently taken, and Newbold is now busy developing the pictures, and is now busy developing a band of wandering "Chinooks" passed the lonely post on the 141st parallel that they didn't fall before the unerring muzzle of Kingsbury's camera. The leading native

Chinook of interior Alaska stood before it and afterwards shrank back in superstitious awe at his counterfeit presentment. The wild mountain scenery amidst which the daring little party was buried for two years gave view after view of surpassing natural beauty. The Yukon River, probably the largest stream in the world, was pictured in winter and summer, either gorged with huge ice-floes, frozen from bank to bank with desolate stretches of snow-buried country on either side, and gleaming under the Arctic midnight sun or in all the willow-fringed and smiling luxuriance of its short Alaskan summer. Frozen waterfalls, stamped like stationary crystal upon the face of the black volcanic rock over which they fall, were transferred to Kingsbury's hungry plates.

The fur-clad hunters of the survey party tried in hand, and starting out for their solitary tramp through the primeval gorges and valleys of the surrounding country, were caught in the act by the indefatigable young surveyor of Camp Davidson. Equilibrium dogs in sled harness furnished some excellent studies in animal life as they lolled in the sun before the headquarters. The staff, in fact, the camera purchased in St. Louis that pretty steady eye in Alaska from August 1, to June 30, and Dr. Kingsbury's friends are now enjoying the benefits of his work.

During the past week Dr. Kingsbury kindly planned this series of photographs for the SUNDAY POST-RECORD, and the accompanying cuts show some characteristic views which give a graphic idea of the scenery and people, amidst which McGrath and a winter sketch of the Alaskan wilderness bordering the ice which always marks the banks of the Upper Yukon River at that season of the year is also among the cuts shown.

It is one of the clearest of all the views taken by Dr. Kingsbury, and represents a scene on the "Frozen Waterfall" on the Upper Yukon

River, two miles below Camp Davidson, a bordering the ice which always marks the

banks of the Upper Yukon River at that sea-

son of the year is also among the cuts shown.

that they are, properly speaking, Mahinouts natives from the Behring Sea. The natives encountered in Alaska, Dr. Kingsbury explains, are either the Aleuts from the Aleutian Islands, Esquimaux or "Chinooks" from the Arctic circle or Mahinouts.

A third cut represents the "Old Chief Charley," himself in solitary grandeur, clad in his native costume. This old fellow is described by Mr. McGrath in a letter as the "boss type" for chief of Alaska, from the flats to Polly River, a natural politician and the champion beggar of tobacco, beans and other delicacies, in the whole district through which the government party traveled.

"Old Chief Charley" and his retainers were, however, of great use to the camp, which they kept supplied with fresh meat. Beginning with their visit in April, 1890, these particular natives were so pleased with the two young St. Louisans and their party that they stayed right with them for over a year, camping not far from the government hut. Old Charley is about 60 years old, and is pre-eminent in his generation for dirt and mendacity.

Another of the cuts with this article is a view of Camp Davidson taken from the "magnetic observatory," a spot about twenty yards distant from the headquarters cabins, and sacred to Commander McGrath.

It shows the two low-built log huts in which the officers and men lived, the former, three in number, in the right wing, and the latter, seven all told, in the left. To the extreme left is the flag-staff from which the signal is hoisted, and a hotbed for a few thousand years. In winter all that could be seen of the hut was the door.

The other party has for its leaders ex-

President Legitime and Francois Manigat, another Minister of Finance for a certain length of time under President Salomon.

One of the chiefs, who I believe spoke instances, the Prophete party will almost sure make a warlike attack on the Haytian government before the end of the present year, and he came back with a warlike attitude.

I said to Gen. Manigat one day: "It has been stated that while you are opposed to President Hippolyte, yet you are willing to allow him to peacefully complete his term of office, which has yet five years to run. Is that true?"

"I will let him serve out his term—if he can," he replied. "But I shall try to prevent him doing so. President Hippolyte

KINGSTON, Sept. 4, 1891.—This city, the capital of Jamaica, is, and has been for many years, the chief rendezvous for Haytians ex-

for plots and conspiracies against whatever Government happened to be in power in Haiti at the time of their exile.

The Haytian refugees now here number about two hundred, and they are all well to the entertainment of 1,000 patients if necessary. The asylum will be built of brick on a basement of limestone, and the facads will be richly ornamented with brown stone and terra cotta. Ground for the building has been surveyed and the work of construction will be commenced early in the spring with the intention of having it completed within a year from that time. When finished it will be a very attractive feature of the suburb, its architecture a free translation of the style of Francis I., being quite a novelty in this section.

After the asylum proper is ready for occupancy a number of out-buildings, an entertainment hall for the amusement of patients, a laundry, an engine and boiler-house and stables are to be erected. Nothing is to be omitted to make this asylum rate with the best and most perfectly arranged of its class in the country.

According to their own interests; the different Mohammedans who regulate their lives according to the letter of the Koran, and those who drink native beer in spite of the prohibition of the Koran against intoxicating liquors. Strange as it may seem, the Kong people are very tolerant and have few prejudices. They told Ringer that they saw food in all religions and regarded Mohammedanism, Christianity and Judaism as closely allied because they worshipped the same God.

In the evening there is a great deal of dancing in the public squares and also chorus singing. Schools are numerous, where the children are taught to read the Koran. No one is permitted to walk the streets armed with a gun or saber. Ringer found Kong a very pleasant place and was entertained with great hospitality. A French expedition has recently reached Kong and will no doubt add to the knowledge brought by Capt. Ringer.

man that when he was offered to a Queens-land and labor ship for two tonasawaks the trade was made. His new owners thought he was native and expected to make a fine profit by his services to some Queens-land planter. They discovered, however, after a few days that he was nothing but an unfortunate Italian, and so they shoved him ashore on New Britain as an object of no account value. There he still lives, a miserable reminder of the most unfortunate party of Europeans who ever went to the Western Pacific.
